

NOTE TO TEACHERS

I try to set up my classroom in a way that will make all my students successful. I love visuals, especially in kindergarten, and especially at the beginning of the year. They really help to limit the amount of times I have to say the directions and help to make the students more independent.

After I give the directions for each activity I display the directions on the board. In the beginning I post them, but once we have gotten into the swing of the school year I hand that job over to my teacher helper (one of my class jobs)

I put magnetic tape on the back of each card and keep them in a caddy close to the board. This makes it easy to grab and display at the start of each activity.
